No Marine Band Concerts. The President has not yet requested the Secretary of the Navy to order the Marine Band to begin its weekly concerts in the White House grounds.

The Smith Court. The records and findings of the Smith Court of Inquiry will probably be trans-mitted to the Secretary of the Navy to-morrow. The court has concluded its lamorrow. The court has concluded its la-bors with the exception of putting the pa-pers in shape for transmittal.

The Late Secretary Frelinghaysen.

The State Department is draped in mourning out of respect for the late Secretary Frelinghaysen. It is doubtful whether any member of the Cabinet will be able to attend the funeral, although Secretary Payard hopes to do so.

Postmasters' Bonds. The Postmaster General to day issued an order directing that whenever any postmaster of the first class shall have remained in office for five years from the date of the taking effect of his latest official bond, he shall execute a new bond in manner and with sureties, as required by manner and with sureties, as required by law, upon notice from the Department,

The President's Callers. The President's Callers.
The President's callers to-day included Senators Ransom and Van Wyck, Representatives Watson, Boyle, Singleton, Dibble, Riggs, Bragg, Lowry and King, the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, the First Comptroller, E. W. Oyster, C. B. Kimball, Consul at Stuttgart, and a large Dakota delegation headed by ex-Governor Ordway.

The District Marshalship. It is pretty well ascertained to-day that there will be no long delay by the President in the appointment of a Marshal for the District of Columbia to succeed Marshal McMichael. The lucky man will probably be announced between now and the 1st of June. Some weeks may clapse, however, before the other local appointments are determined upon.

vantage to our customers, Mr. Manning Wants More Room. Secretary Manning is considering the necessity of giving additional room in the Treasury building for the Second Comptroller's office, which is now divided and cramped out of all proportion to its enormous business. It has been suggested, with the approval of the Architect of the gains, which our necessity Treasury, that rooms be designated in the Smithsonian Institute for the Director of the Mint, and that the Director's office in the Treasury be added to the Second Comp troller's rooms. No decision in the matter has been arrived at.

> A Resignation Requested. S. W. Saxton, one of the chiefs of divi-sion in the First Comptroller's office, resion in the First Comptroller's office, re-ceived a requirest for his resignation this morning and immediately carried the matter to Secretary Manning and asked whether it was his desire that the resig-nation should be tendered. The Secretary replied that he had not known of the request and would take the matter under advisement. Major Saxton is an employe of fifteen years experience, during which he has risen from a low-class clerkship and has not voted since 1800.

The Wales Court-Martial. An air of fragrance emanating from a basket of choice cut flowers filled the Wales Court-Martial room this morning. Attached to the basket was a small card, on which was written, in a delicate hand, "To Mr. Blair." The session of the court to-day was taken up with the examination of Mr. John Cook of the Fourth Anditor's office in regard to the fraudulent amination of Mr. John Cook of the Fourth Auditor's office in regard to the fraudulent vouchers of the Bureau of Medicine and Surgery, Navy Department, accompanying the accounts of Pay Inspector Richard Washington. A number of the vouchers had been paid, though many were suspended for the want of evidence of the delivery of the goods. The trial promises to be a long and tedious one, as the case involves a great number of alleged culpable acts of omission, furnishing ground for a wide variety of objections, arguments and replies.

The Halifax Consulship.

It was learned at the State Department this morning that there had been something of a commercial uprising in Halifax over the contemplated change in the office of consul-general. Several weeks ago Mr. Wakefield G. Frye of Maine had placed his resignation at the disposal of the Department, but the Nova Scotian merchants have become possessed of the idea that his action was not entirely voluntary. As Mr. Bayard expressed the situation, it seemed as if the whole country up there was aroused in the interest of Mr. Frye's retention. A great bundle of petitions has been forwarded to the President, asking that Mr. Frye be continued in office, and representing the desirability of his services in protecting and fostering the commercial relations between Nova Scotia'and the States. Mr. Frye is a near relative of Scnator Frye, but it is not believed he will be retained. The Halifax Consulship.

The Naval Observatory Secretary Whitney has ordered Captain George E. Belknap to assume control of the Naval Observatory, near this city, after June 1, and detaching him from his present duty as captain of the Norfolk Navy-Yard. The appointment as superintendent of the Observatory is a very desirable one. one, owing to the prominence in scientific and social circles which it involves, and the detail is made after an earnest contest. Some weeks ago Rear Admiral Franklin was relieved from duty as superintendent of the Observatory as superintendent of the Observatory upon assuming command of a squadron. and Captain Brown, the next officer in rank, has since been in charge of the Observatory, Captain Belknap becomes a commodore by the retirement of Commodore Upshur on the day that he assumes control of the Observatory, He is a native and resident of New Hampshire, and was appointed from that State. He entered the navy on May 30, 1846, and has, therefore, seen thirty-nine years of service, nineteen of which were spent at sea. Captain Belknap which were spent at sea. Captain Belknap

CAPTAIN BOYTON EXONERATED. It is Not True That He Was an Accessory to Odlum's Death.

The telegram sent from Washington to the New York Herold last evening it reference to the late Odlum tragedy, charg ing Captain Paul Boyton with the chief sponsibility for it, has not only much in ensed the friends of Boyton, but is contrary to the general opinion of Mr. Odlum' friends. There were some of the latte who, not knowing the circumstances of the case, were at first disposed to believe the case, were at first disposed to believe that Odlum had been persuaded into his perilous adventure by bad advisors and that he was induced to undertake it against his own judgment, but it is so well known by many of Mr. Odlum's acquaint-ances that he had long contemplated this feat and had fully made up his mind to attempt it, that it is both a perversion of history and a gross injustice to Boyton to make Odlum appear the victim of a cruel conspiracy.

make Oddum appear the victim of a cruel conspiracy.

Mr. C. W. Herbert, late of St. Louis, but now of New York, and a friend to both parties, said to a Curric reporter to-day that Captain Boyton had repeatedly warned Oddum against the probably fatal result of his leap, and did so up to the very last moment. He admitted that it might be successfully made, but the chances were a thousand to one against it, and such was the view entertained by Mr. Odlum's friends and advisers generally, Boyton is now sick from the experienced in the rescue of Oddum from the water, but has generously gone to an he water, but has generously gone to an xpense of several hundred dollars toward letraying the expenses of bisfuneral, and defraying the expenses of his funeral, and expresses the sincurest sorrow at the melancholy termination of an enterprise which he did all in his power to avert.

Mr. William A. O'Meara of this city, one of Mr. Odlum's nearest friends, fully corroborates all that Mr. Herbert says, and had known of the unfortunate young man's determination for months past. Indeed, Mr. Odlum had talked of the matter for two years or more. Mr. O'Meara saw him the night before he left for New York and endeavored to dissuade him from the venture, but he would listen to

York and endeavored to dissuade him from the venture, but he would listen to no argument. He was bound to make the trial and was confident of success.

Mr. Herbert also states that Mrs. Odlum and Mrs. Smith, both of whom he saw last evening are now satisfied that Captain Boyton is not at all to blame, although they had a different impression on the first receipt of the shocking intelligence of the death of their son and brother. They feel that their censure of Boyton was the impulse of the moment, and that he is really entitled to exoneration from the unjust charges that have been made against him.

"A 'stun' can only be removed by cutting off the face; there are many uncured 'stuns' in the Capitol terrace, and the important blocks have wide natural cracks; the line work is not true, and in important blocks' have wide natural cracks; the line work is not true, and in many places is very irregular; the work was finished some time last fall, and is already being patched up. Such imperfections are regarded by good builders and architects as very grave defects. The ashlar does not seem to have been fine sanded when worked, which is mecessary to decrease the power of the stone to absorb meisture. The work has kept ten men continually at work for the last six months pointing up and grouting the months pointing up and grouting the

THE FOREIGN MAIL SUBSIDY. Mistaken Ideas of the Steamship Agents About It.

That subsidy of $400,000 to American teamship lines continues to be the chie topic of interest around the Postoffice De artment, where the talkative agents tread on each other's heels in their visits to Postmaster-General Vilas, The most ersistent worker is Mr. Lauterbach of the Pacific Mail Company, who appears to be endeavoring to solve the problem on what the race-horse men call "a sy on what the race-horse men call "a system." A prominent importer from New York to-day said:

"I gather from the conversation of these agents that they claim the Government has an enormous revenue from its foreign mail service, and their idea is that the Government should not permit the service to become a money-making institution, but that the compensation for service should be increased to a point almost equal with the receipts, so that by these means the merchant marine would be built up without cost to this country. One of the agents told me last night that the foreign mail service was $2,000,000. the income to the Government from the foreign mail service was $2,000,000; the expenditures, $325,000; leaving an enormous balance of $1,675,000. Out of mere curicsity I looked the matter up, and I find the actual receipts on sea post-age are but $365,000. The agents make the mistake of calculating the five cents postage on each foreign letter as belong-ing to the foreign mail fund. The fact is, three cents out of the five is placed to the credit of the rallway mail fund for trans-portation to the seaboard, and as there is a ortation to the seaboard, and as there is orge deficiency in that fund, the three ents is swallowed up and forgotten, leav-ing the foreign mail service to get along it is two cents. These agents are share blows, but they will get captured yet.

An Interesting Calculation. A navy officer to-day made a calculation that if Professor Odluna's weight was 175 pounds when he made his last jump the yelocity of the body on striking the water, provided he went four feet under the surface, was 187 feet per second, and that he struck with a force representing a total weight of 9,000 foot pounds, APPARENT STANDSTILL IN ANGLO-RUSSIAN NEGOTIATIONS.

Russian Advices Report No Serious Hitch-Indian Troops for the Viceroy -The Italian Garrison at Massowah Surrounded by Hostile Abyssinians, London, May 22 .- The Times says: "It impossible to deny that the prevalent celing of anxiety and uncertainty is still growing. From the scanty information given by the Ministers it is evident that we are no nearer a satisfactory settlement than we were at the beginning of the month. There are no signs of an advance in the negotiations, but on the contrary there are ominous evidences of a stand Another View of the Situation.

Another View of the Situation.

Vienna, May 22.—St. Petersburg telegrams affirm that there is no likely in the negotiations and that the delay is only caused by difficulties which are inseparable from the boundary question. The reasons why the Russian papers continue to dwell on England's alleged preparations for war are supposed to be explained by the fact that hints have been given them by the Government to keep alive the public ardor for war while new taxos are being imposed to cover Russia's own expenses.

Troops for the Viceroy. ALLAHMAN, May 22.—The Maharajah of Nepaul reviewed 20,000 Goorka troops yesterday at Khatmandu and offered them for inmediate service to the Viceroy of India. The men presented a fine appear-ance and seemed anxious for service.

women and a priest, to ask upon what terms he would be allowed to surrender.
Baptiste Fontaine, the scout supposed to have been killed a fortnight ago white on a scouting expedition under Constable.
Ross, came in with the released prisoners.
He says Poundansker was badly broken up yesterday on learning of Riel's surrender. The Indians were terribly frightened and piled their rifles in a tepec and hoisted an old British flag which they had captured somewhere. They then held a big council and decided upon sending in the letter asking for terms of surrender. There

The Cluverius Trial.

Richmond, Va., May 22—Among the witnesses examined in the trial to-day were Mr. Dillard, the night clerk at the American Hotel, and Wm. Teller, night watchman, who testified to the presence of Cinverius at the hotel on the night of March 13, and his request to be shown to the room occupied by Miss Madison. He subsequently sent for her and the lady came down to the parior to see him, Wm. Tucker (colered), a street car employe, testified to stopping a car for a lady affed gentlemen on the night of the 13th of March. The prisoner was the man.

The Nash Murder.

PHILADELPHIA, May 22.—The writ of habeas corpus in the case of Daniel E. Stanton, charged with the murder of Frederick P. Nash, which was to have Frederick P. Nash, which was to have been heard this morning, was withdrawn. It was taken out to have the question of ball determined, but as the district attor-ncy and counsel for the relator could not agree, the district attorney declining to assent to any ball, it was deemed advisable not to go into the hearing of the evidence at this time.
